Educational objectives

• Metaphorically or symbolically express the significance and value of compassion.
• Identify three techniques to cultivate and amplify warmth within/between clients.
• Explain how to combine attachment-focused and Ericksonian therapy.
Overview

1. THE POWER OF WARMTH
   Cows in cliques are smarter than lone bovines

2. BUILDING RESPONSIVENESS
   To grow fruit trees you need healthy soil

3. ENRICHING EXPERIENCE
   The use of harmony makes the melody come alive
Cows in cliques are smarter than lone bovines

1. THE POWER OF WARMTH
Being connected is our default state
Social Baseline Theory, James Coan

• Our default (energy-efficient) state is to be connected with others – Cows in herds are smarter than lone bovines
  – Elephants bunch around the oldest female
  – Orcas teach one another
  – Coyotes and badgers team up to hunt
  – Penguins synchronise huddling movements to maximise warmth
Polyvagal Theory, Stephen Porges

- Evolution made us social creatures
- Our Minds are Embodied and Relational, Dan Siegal
- Hierarchy of survival strategies
  - Default strategy is connection and attachment
  - Mobilization (reactive emotions), e.g. anger, disappointment, frustration
  - Immobilization, e.g. dissociation, freeze, disinterest, depression
Autonomic Nervous System (ANS)

Sympathetic Nervous System

- Mobilization, get up and going
- Fight flight; energy to get up in the morning, exercise, do chores, play

Parasympathetic Nervous System

“What would it feel like to be safe and warm? Arms strong but gentle. Snuggled close, joined by tears and laughter. Free to share, to stay, to leave ....” (Deb Dana)
Attack and Defend

“I have been hurt, tricked and fooled. It is not going to happen again.”

• Blaming, criticizing, contempt, demanding – Discharges pain and discomfort
  – Distracts from own vulnerability, loneliness, sadness, fear, pain
  – Feels empowering

• Self-justification to keep shame at bay

• Being “right” as a means of maintaining certainty.

• “The golden parachute”: becoming involved in egotism (rather than pain) to become immune to interpersonal influence.

Dorsal System

<td>Rest-digest, post-easting, a little sleepy, blood to the gut. Easy calm being, lounging at the beach, chilling out.</td>

Ventral Vagal System

- Rest-digest
- Post-easting
- Little sleepy
- Blood to the gut
- Easy calm being
- Lounging at the beach
- Chilling out
Hiding and Numbing

• Role models respond negatively (disinterest, anger, anxiety, volatility)
• Focus on objects rather than on people
• Family/societal ideas about showing “weakness”
• Trauma (threat of immobilization)
To grow fruit trees you will need healthy soil

2. BUILDING RESPONSIVENESS
Building Responsiveness

• “Consider the analogy of farming. There is no sense in planting a seed in the hardened ground and expecting it to grow. It has to be prepared, tilled, fertilized”, J. Zeig

• We might see stuck states as emotional hardening where growth is not possible and we (client and therapist) need to prepare the ground by attending to it
Building responsiveness

Tend and befriend
Hands strong and safe, connected to the herd, at home

Get up and going
Play, curiosity instead of fight & flight

Rest and digest
Lie still in the arms of a loved one instead of freeze
Warmth is the catalyst for building responsiveness

• Humans have a deep need for the safe haven found in secure connection.
• Hawthorne Effect: interest in workers = increased productivity.
• EFT research: when therapists increased warmth behavior to husbands, husbands increased warmth behavior towards their wives.
Defrosting blocks, help clients to regulate

• Protective layers scramble the signals of underlying needs
• To elicit warmth we need also to unfreeze people
• Becoming an emotionally resonant chamber means feeling and exposing yourself to pain
• It means allowing hope to have a space, which means taking a risk
Regulating Explosions

• Reactivity means that the client is online and involved!

• Validate and reframe in attachment terms – “Of course you are going to do this ... this makes perfect sense ...”
  – “This is so important ... she is so important ...”

• Standing there signaling, “I mean you no harm” means dropping defenses
  – “A cannot see through your frustration to her pain ... ”
  – “You cannot do that at the moment ...”
The clinician’s warmth as a co-regulative force

- Sharing the cognitive load: validation, empathic interventions cognitive summaries
- Near/distance: chairs with wheels
- Limbic communication
  - Touch / hands in the air near client to signal touch
  - Hand over heart
  - Using body to attune to client (breathing, blink, posture)
  - Holding with your eyes (esp. couple)
  - Use of voice (prosody)
Warning signs and potential risks

• Alcohol and substance abuse
• Extreme instability, e.g. suicidality, self-harming

• Before helping people to dismantle their protection mechanisms, make sure that they are not currently the healthiest (safe) option:
  – In relationships where violence or abuse is occurring
  – When the patient has impulse control problems
Secure Attachment

• A safe haven or harbor
• Sanctuary
• A base camp
• An anchor
• “Being back in the womb”
The 6 Powers of Kindness - PEACE®

Personality: learning to be someone that others like (e.g. smiling, being friendly and fun, positivity)

Empathy: being an emotionally resonant chamber, compassion, validating

Appreciation and generosity: (spontaneous) giving, showing positive regard, compliments, showing gratitude

Connecting: sharing experiences and feelings, showing interest in others, collaboration, curiosity
The 6 Powers of Kindness - PEACE®

Elegance: maintaining grace and kindness under pressure, fairness, forgiving, apologizing, honesty

Reputation: building a strong and caring reputation; sticking power

Move in small steps
Goal: connection, sharing

(1) So when you feel that knot in your stomach ....

Focus inside (target adaptive emotions)

(2) the one that reminds you of your fear of losing her ... it reminds you of your love for her

Validate and heighten

(3) ... You know ... no you could never share that with her ...

Introduce the vehicle, e.g. enactment

(4) And yet ... yes you could turn to her for comfort right now ... you could just ... look into her eyes and tell her ...

Open the door and invite the client to get in Component + Tailoring = Suggestion

What does client like doing? What position do they take? What would they enjoy?

• The science of love and connection
• Compassion is the machinery the motor that can drive your relationship
• Elegance as embroidery on the tapestry of your personality
• Generosity as part of your natural heritage
• Connection is efficient, it can help you to optimize your energy and become a driving force force
• Kindness as investment or capital
• Appreciation as art, music, dance, architecture
Get their attention!

“[hypnotic communication]… absorbs the person’s attention and orients them to some possibility … your suggestions act as a catalyst for organizing and using more for the client’s internal resources, both conscious and unconscious, in a goal-directed way” (Michael Yapko, Trancework)
Orienting Towards
Target: connection, utilize IT/engineering

It can be helpful to be able to know what makes things work
Just like you can ... be really good in understanding logic behind soft... ware
To analyze the protocols on which connections are made up
And if you Karl ... you can persevere .... you can find that there is something like a soft ... software protocol behind love and connection

In fact you might even see it like a game with rules and logic
Where you can enjoy predicting ... and you can having a locus of control
When you know about the technology behind it
And you can ... Karl ... learn to use the science of charisma to strengthen ... your status in your relationship
The use of harmony makes the melody come alive

Making therapy experiential

- Turn abstract concepts into an experience
- Dot-to-dot therapy: give the client the outline but do not fill it in
- Use theme and variation
- Make therapy multisensory
- Get the emotions online
- Use fun and play
- Use of drama, suspense and tension
- Keep it simple!
Exercise

Conflict resolution with ventral vagal activation

1. Remember a conflict. Imagine it in front of you as a film. Drain the color. Turn the sound of. Put the film aside.
2. Think of something you enjoy becoming absorbed in. Add a soundtrack. Make it bigger, brighter, more colorful than it is.
3. Thoughts are energy for action. Put the energy inside a sun.
4. Take the problem image and put it behind the sun in a reverse eclipse. Push the sun into the film.
5. Sit back and enjoy the view.
Gift-wrapping

Because how would that be if you could?

• EFT enactment, “… turn to your wife right now and … look in to her eyes and … find comfort with her?”
• Trance: suppose you want to sleep one night and a miracle happened and you could tell your wife these things, what would that look/sound/feel like?
• Sculpture: if could sculpt your wife out of clay, how might she have to be so that you could approach her?
• Mindfulness exercise: observe your fears and longings without judging them or pushing them away. Notice how they are hiding below the anger.
Window of tolerance

• Shame clients getting overwhelmed
• When out of window of tolerance, defense mechanisms (ice over) get activated • Experiential experiments are invitations to be vulnerable – jump in the water and swim.
• This is frightening. We need to dose it and expand window of tolerance gradually.
“Erickson looked down ... and gradually slowly in mechanical movements he looked up ... and in the same mechanical movements looked across, fixed my gaze ... and probably looked though me, perhaps he timed my breathing ... and then he looked down the midline of my body as if he were suggesting, ‘go down inside’ ... now I was cataleptic.”
